The Three-Sentence Cold Pitch Framework

Short. Specific. Sent.

You rewrote it fourteen times and it still sounds like a beg. Write less. Give every sentence one job.

THE FRAMEWORK

01 PROOF

Show you looked.

One specific detail about their ads or posts.

Find it: Meta Ad Library. The ads running longest are their winners.

02 OFFER

Name the video.

Length, format, product. Match a format they already run.

"A 30 second routine video" beats "some content."

03 ASK

Make yes easy.

One small step. Include your rate card.

Send a concept and your rates. Never a free video.

WHAT IT LOOKS LIKE IN THEIR INBOX

New message

To: Maya Torres, Creator Partnerships, Dewmark

Subject: A 30 second video idea for your Barrier Serum

Hi Maya,

I noticed your longest-running Meta ads all open with a bare-face close-up and a one-line skin concern. 01

I'd like to shoot a 30 second video for your Barrier Serum in that same format, ready to run as a paid ad. 02

Can I send you the concept and my rate card this week? 03

THE FORMULA

PROOF	I noticed [a specific detail from their ads or posts].
OFFER	I'd like to shoot a [length] video for [their product] in that same [format they run].
ASK	Can I send you the concept and my rate card this week?

Three sentences. Greeting and sign-off do not count.

BEFORE AND AFTER

✕ THE BEG

"Hi! I love your brand and would love to work together. I have 5k followers and post lifestyle content. Let me know if you're interested!"

- No proof you looked
- No format or deliverable
- Leads with followers
- Makes them do the work

✓ THE PITCH

I noticed your last three Reels open with a packing-cube reveal before any product talk.

I'd like to shoot a 30 second POV packing video for your carry-on in that same style.

Can I send you the concept and my rate card this week?

- ✓ Proof only this brand could get
- ✓ Exact length, format, product
- ✓ One easy yes

Packwell is a fictional example brand.

WHERE TO SEND IT

Email a named person in partnerships or influencer marketing. Most brands do not staff their DMs for pitches.

SWIPE FILE

Three pitches, three niches.

TECH AND APPS — RATE FLOOR NICHE x 1.4

I noticed your TikTok ads all open with a screen recording of Tallybook sorting one messy week of spending.

I'd like to shoot a 30 second video in that same hook-first format, using a money mess my audience knows.

Can I send you the concept and my rate card this week?

HEALTH AND WELLNESS — RATE FLOOR NICHE x 1.2

I noticed your best-running Stridewell Greens ad is a morning-routine clip, not a talking-head review.

I'd like to shoot a 30 second morning-routine video in that style, with a first-sip close-up.

Can I send you the concept and my rate card this week?

FOOD AND BEVERAGE — RATE FLOOR NICHE x 1.0

I noticed Crumbly's newest Reels end on a slow, silent crunch close-up, and the comments ask for the sound.

I'd like to shoot a 15 second crunch-first video for your cinnamon bites in that same sensory style.

Can I send you the concept and my rate card this week?

Tallybook, Stridewell and Crumbly are fictional example brands. Multipliers come from your Rate Floor Worksheet.

- [ ] Exactly three sentences.
- [ ] The first one could only go to this brand.

Could it go to ten brands with just the name swapped? Then it is not ready.
